ANOTHER MEETING OF SYMPATHY FOR THE INDIANS.—A second meeting of those sympa-thizing in the misfortunes of the red men was held last evening at Odd Fellows' Hall. The held last evening at Odd Fellows' Hall. The attendance was much larger than at the previous meeting, the large hall being well filled, the ladies, as usual, attesting their interest in the cause by being present in large numbers. The meeting was addressed at considerable length by the venerable John Beeson, who remarked that this was a cause in which all sections, both North and Sonth, could well sympathize. It appealed to the heart of the philanthropic the world over. He believed the American people wanted to do justice to the Indians, and had only been restrained from it by the seeming difficulties in the way. There was a remedy for it; and when that remedy should be seized hold of by our Government, backed up by the American people, and carried into effect, it would receive the acclamation of the civilized world, and belpointed at with pride by posterwould receive the acclamation of the civilized world, and bellpointed at with pride by posterity. He then went on to relate many facts, bearing on the case, as coming under his own observation, which we have not space now to enumerate. In conclusion, he offered the following preamble and resolutions for the consideration of the meeting:

Whereas history and living witnesses testify that, with fair dealing towards the Indians, there has been no war or bloodshed on their account; therefore.

Resolved. That the frequent difficulties upon our frontiers, involving the expenditure of mil-lions of dollars in war against them, and milfions more ostensibly to protect and feed them, for which no permanent good is produced, call loudly for investigation and redress.

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to wait upon the proper Department to express the sentiment of this meeting, to the effect that peace commissioners be appointed to visit the various tribes to examine the nature and extent of their grievances, with a view to a rdance with equity and jus

Resolved, That authority and means be asked to aid the Indians of the principal tribes, and their friends, to meet in a general council, to wards the close of the coming summer, to con fer on the best means for protection and im

Dr. White, formerly an Indian agent, then Dr. White, formerly an Indian agent, then arose and addressed the meeting at some length. He could not exactly concur with the preamble presented, though he was strongly in favor of the reforms contemplated. The conduct of the people east of the Mississippi, as far as his knowledge extended, had been uniformly kind and just towards the Indian: but he could not say as much for those residing west of that river. He then went on to relate instances of river. He then went on to relate instances of cruelty practiced by the whites towards the In dians in Oregon, while he was a resident of that Territory, in which the Indians, in return, had shown much elemency and forbearance. When a peaceful and just policy had been when a peaceful and just policy and been pursued towards them, $3,000 a year had often been found to be enough; whereas, when that policy was changed, and a policy of war sub-stituted, it had taken millions to keep them in subjection. The true policy was, to treat the Indian kindly, and to endeavor to bring him forward in the scale of enlightenment and Christianity.

The question was then taken on the resolu tions, and they were decided in the affirmative, with but one or two dissenting voices. In the course of the evening, Larooqua, who is fast getting to be a great favorite here, sang several plaintive melodies, which were loudly applauded.

GOOD FRIDAY .- Good Friday was observed yesterday in all the Catholic and Episcopa churches in this city. The churches of those denominations were draped in mourning, and the services, which were all very largely attend ed, were of the most solemn and interesting character. Among the usages of this day, in olden times, was the strange ceremony of creeping to the cross, from which even the King was not exempt. The King also distributed rings at Westminster Abbey for the cure of the cramp. The ceremonious burying of a cracifix, as representing the burial of Christ, is calculated to give less surprise. It is still in some measure kept up in the service of the Tonclrae, per-formed in St. Peter's at Rome. In England, and perhaps also in other countries, eggs and bacon were the kinds of food appropriated to Good Friday. The eggs laid on this day were thought to have the power of extinguishing any fire into which they might be thrown. In modern times, the only species of viands con-nected with the day is the well-known hot cross bun, a small spiced cake, marked with the fig ure of a cross, and sold not only in bakers shops, but by persons traversing the streets

In London, as well as in almost every other considerable town in England, the first sound heard on the morning of Good Friday is the cry of "Hot Cross Buns!" uttered by great numbers of people of an humble order, who parade the streets with baskets containing a plentiful stock of the article, wrapped up in flannel and linen to keep it warm. The cry, which is rather musical, is strictly-

Hot cross buns ! One a penny, buns—two a penny, buns; One a penny, two a penny, hot cross buns!

Hucksters of all kinds, and many person who attempt no traffic at any other time, enter who attempt no trains at any into the business of supplying buns on Good Friday morning. They make a stir on the streets, which lasts until church time, and it is resumed in the afternoon. In old times, Good Friday was distinguished in London by a ser mon preached at Paul's Cross, (a wooden pul pit, placed on stone steps, and surmounted by a cross, which stood till the time of the civil war, near St. Paul's Cathedral.) war, near St. Faul's Cathedral.) The sermon was generally on the subject of Christ's pas-sion. Connected with it, two or three others were preached on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, at the Spital, in Spitalfields, where the Lord Mayor and all the most works. the Lord Mayor and all the most eminent per-sons in London generally attended. The "Spital Sermons" are still kept up, but take place in St. Bride's Church.

To-morrow, (Easter Sunday,) the resurrection of Christ is celebrated, and grand high mass is

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MRS. CHAWFORD. The funeral of the late Mrs. Crawford, the esteemed wife of Judge Crawford, of the Criminal Court, took place yesterday afternoon, from her late residence on F street, between Sixth and Seventh, and was attended by a very large number of sympathizing friends and relatives among whom were many members of the bas The solemn services were conducted by the Rev. P. D. Gurley, and the remains were interred in the Congressional Cemetery. The following gentlemen acted as pall-bearers: Judge Merrick, Marshal Selden, District Attorney Ould, E. J. Middleton, R. S. RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT - About sixty citisens of Pennsylvania, now in this city, assem-bled on Thursday evening, at the quarters of Hon. E. Joy Morris, of Philadelphia, for the purpose of adopting some appropriate expression of respect to the memory of the late Hou. Geo. W. Scranton, member of the Thirty fifth and Thirty sith Congresses, who died at his residence in Scranton on Friday last. Senator Wilmot presided, and appropriate resolutions were offered by Colonel Forney, Clerk of the United States House of Representatives, and were adopted. They were supported by dresses from E. Joy Morris, Dr. Elder, Poleston, and Winthrop W. Ketchum.

WITHDRAWN.-We learn that Major B. B. French has sent a letter to the Preside drawing his application for the Marshalship of the District of Columbia.

LITERARY VISITERS,-Dr. R. Shelton Mac LITERARY VISITERS.—Dr. R. He is staying at the residence of J. W. Forney, Esq. William H. Russell, Esq., the celebrated Crimean correspondent of the London Times, is also in this city, and will leave in a day or two for the capital of the Contederate States.

THE FISHER GIRL.-Mr. Barbee, of Virginia the talented young sculptor, has returned to Washington, for the purpose of puning the finishing touches to a duplicate statue of the Fisher Girl. The duplicate is said to be an improvement upon the original, the artist hav ing bestowed upon it additional labor, time, and study. Those who saw the Fisher Girl, when first on exhibition in this city, will recollect it as a work of rare merit and extraordiy beauty and symmetry. The duplicate will on exhibition this afternoon, at Philp's

DECISION APPIRMED .- Judge Merrick, of the Circuit Court, has affirmed a decision of the effect, that an unreasonable delay by an appli-cant for a patent, in pursuing his object to the tribunal of the last resort known to the law in such cases, worked an abandonment. In the case particularly decided upon, there was no proof that delay was occasioned by want of case particularly accided upon, there was no proof that delay was occasioned by want of means by the applicant to appeal to the Circuit Court, the examiner and appeal board having previously decided adversely to the claim. The model was exposed to public view some two years before the applicant initiated proceedings to get an endorsement of his case

A MISTAKE.—We are requested by the magistrate and officers in attendance at the Central Guardhouse to state that there was no call made there on Thursday night by "a young girl about seventeen years" of age, for lodgings, shelter, or any other purpose. The statement in an evening paper, in a paragraph headed "A vic-tim," so far as the Central Guardhouse is concerned, is without foundation.

AN ENTERPRISING CONSTABLE IN A SCRAPE. An Enterprising Constables, having had in his possession for a long time two executions against the goods and chattels of a citizen of "Swampoodle," and having failed in repeated attempts to enter the premises and seize the goods, secured the services of a fellow-constable, who thought that, from the fact of his being a stranger in that neighborhood, he would be able to enter the premises, and when once within the doorway, he would have no difficulty in levying on the furniture. Yesterday morn-ing, our enterprising constable started on his errand, and was followed by two persons, who went to see how the matter would turn out. On arriving at the house, he knocked at the door, at the same time opening it, and placing his fool inside, as if to enter, but the women of the house not liking the intrusion, pushed against the door with such force as to catch the poor fellow's leg fast between it and the frame. Our enter leg fast between it and the frame. Our enter-prising friend tried in vain to enter, and not being in the best humor, used some pretty rough language towards the women. About this time the head of a woman was seen protruding from an upper window, and it is sup-posed she said something about hot water, as our gallant constable immediately extricated his leg from the vice-like hold of the door, and
